

Listeners have huge selection of music to delight the ears

• The Quarantones (www.quarantonesensemble.com) is a 12-man auditioned chorus directed by Denise Marquette and accompanied by Kelly Thomas. Together since 2020 (hence the name), the chorus sings male chorus music from a variety of genres and styles. They perform multiple times per year, often with a specific theme, such as last year's concert of sea shanties, and this fall's concert Lest We Forget. It is worth noting that two Valley Choirs have other purposes than making music – they give even more to the community, through support in difficult times.

• The Canadian Military Wives Choir (CMWC) is a three-part women's choir and all members are partners of currently serving Canadian Forces personnel or are currently serving Canadian Forces members. They come together weekly to sing, make new friends, and have fun. The choir is all about support – both vocal and personal. If you're interested in joining this Comox choir; booking us for an event; or learning more information, email canadian-mwc.comox@gmail.com.

• The Comox Valley Threshold Choir (<http://thresholdchoir.org/comoxvalley>) began in September 2016 as part of a 20-year international movement using song to comfort those at the threshold of life. Using soft caring voices, they blend in unison and harmony, offering their singing as gentle blessings, not as entertainment.

This is a gift; there is no charge, and they are not affiliated with any religion. They sing regularly, in trios, at bedside for individuals in private homes, hospitals, at Hospice, for MAiDs, Memorials and Celebrations of Life, and for local Seniors' residences, when requested.

As Mary Gray, NICS president and member of Grace Notes points out, "We are well and truly blessed to live in a community where so many people can gather and experience the joy of singing. There are so many choirs that sometimes it's hard to find a concert date that doesn't conflict. Now isn't that fantastic!"
